BERLIN

With a population of around 3.6 million, Berlin is Germany's largest city and, since reunification in 1990, the country's capital once again. Whether it's culture, sport, fashion, architecture or nightlife, the most populous city in the European Union is Germany's only truly cosmopolitan city and ranks on a par with London, Paris or New York in almost every respect.

FRANKFURT

With just over 750,000 inhabitants, Frankfurt is the fifth largest city in Germany and is primarily known for its financial sector. Both the German stock exchange and the European Central Bank are based in the Hesse metropolis. Frankfurt is the only German city with a distinct skyline. This and its location on the River Main have given it the nickname "Mainhattan", in reference to the famous Manhattan skyline.

LEIPZIG

With a population of almost 600,000, Leipzig is the largest city in the Free State of Saxony. It is a historical center for business, trade and culture in central Germany. The city has an exciting history behind it and was the origin of the peaceful revolution in 1989. The so-called Monday demonstrations took place here, which resulted in the fall of the GDR and German reunification.

STUTT GART

With 640,000 inhabitants, Stuttgart is one of the largest metropolitan regions in Germany and is primarily known as an industrial location. Large and well-known car manufacturers have their headquarters here. In contrast, the mild climate in the idyllic valley basin on the Neckar in and around Stuttgart means that wine can also be grown here.

HIGHLIGHTS FOR YOUR VISIT TO STUTT GART

- Stuttgart vineyards and wine tour
- Heidelberg Castle
- Stuttgart State Theater
- Mainau flower island
